THE GREAT WALL OF CHINA .- The great wall of China was measured in many places by Mr. Unthank as American engineer, lately engaged in a survey for a Chinese railway. His measurement gives the height at 18 feet, and a width on the top of 15 feet. Every few hundred yards there is a tower 24 feet square, and from 20 to 25 feet high. The foundation of the wall is of solid grantle. We Unthank tion of the wall is of solid granite. Mr. Unthanks brought with him a brick from the wall, which is supposed to have been made 200 years before the time of Christ. In building this immence stone fence to keep out the Tartars, the builders never attempted to avoid mountains or chasms to save extempted to avoid mountains or chasms to save extended to have been made 200 years before the seats are a great improvement, and the rooms, but for the shabby blackboards, would present a very cheerful approximately and the part of the same to part of the part of pense. For 1,300 miles the wall goes over plain and ountain, and every foot of the foundation is solid granite, and the rest of the structure solid masonry. In some places the wall is built smooth up against the bank, or canons, or precipices, where there is a sheer descent of 1,000 feet. Small streams are shed over, but on the larger streams the wall runs to the water's edge and a tower is built on each side. On the top of the wall there are breast-works, or defences, facing in and out, so the defend-ing forces can pass from one tower to snother without being exposed to any enemy from either side. To calculate the time of building or cost of this work is beyond human skill. So far as the magnitude of the work is concerned, it surpasses everything in ancient and modern times of which there is any traces, that Walter McBryde, son of the late Judge The pyramids of Egypt are nothing com pared to it

THE PACIFIC Commercial Advertiser.

SATURDAY, JULY 26. Touching the Hon. G. Rhodes' communication, which appeared in the colums of this paper last week, some of our readers fail to see its relation to our present labor question, or its bearings upon any question of public interest, and express surprise that we should have given it space in this paper. In answer we can only say that it has been our rule to give any responsible person, who will sign his name to his communication the right to ventilate his ideas upon questions occupying the public mind. But it is certainly of doubtful propriety for a member of His Majesty's Privy Council of State and President of the Legislative Assembly to endeavor to stir up a quarrel with any foreign power, even if he thought the facts justified one, which in this instance we do not think any one believes is the case. There-

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS

The principal event of the week has been the annual examination of all the government schools of the district. That of the sixteen common schools, taught in the Hawaiian language, took place Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in the Kamoiliili and Kawaiahao churches. The number of pupils in these schools is 581. The examination was conducted by a committee appointed for the purpose, assisted by the Inspector General

Schools; the result was very satisfactory, showing that these schools have made good progress during the past year. In fact it is quite apparent that most of the common schools of the Honolulu district maintain better methods of instruction and higher grades of proficiency than the majority of those in the other districts of the kingdom. The pupils of some of the central schools of Honolulu showed wonderful facility in the solution of mathematical problems in both mental and written arithmetic. The exercises of Wednesday closed with a dialogue entitled-"Na

Daimonio o ke Kiaha '-The Demons of the Cup -which was well rendered by the girls of the Roma School, and elicited the heartiest applause

The examination of the Fort Street School took place on Tuesday and Wednesday. This school, school of the city, held its public examination under the direction of Mr. A. T. Atkinson, the principal, assisted in the main department by Miss Kinney, while the primary departments were directed by Miss Ritz and Miss Mossman.

The number of pupils in this school is 160, but the extension of the midsummer term into the hot months this year, and the prevalence of measles in town, reduced the attendance of scholars below two-thirds the usual number. Those however who were present acquitted themselves exceedingly well, and amply justified the evident pride of their teachers in their attainments.

The classes in mental arithmetic did particularly well, some of the young girls being especially proficient. The algebraic and geometrical problems were readily worked out on the blackboards and explained by the older scholars, while in history (which is taught on the Zgota method) the school seemed especially strong, the scholars sceming to evince quite an idea of the philosophy of history and a readiness with dates, names and events which would be remarkable in old historians. The off-hand map drawing showed good proficiency in geography. The reading classes were also drilled in spelling matches, and in the third class match in English spelling the winner was a native Hawaiian. The attitude of the children in standing for recitation was open to criticism. The reading in the French exercises was good with a tendency however to free translation. The younger scholars in Miss Ritz's department showed evidence of careful drilling in studies and development, and with such preparation in the primary department the efficiency of the school must be enhanced. In leading the school in their music which was a pleasing feature of the examination and in all the classes, the teachers and scholars seemed entirely en rapport, and evinced an esprit and enthusiasm without which scholarly achievement by young people would be impossible. As a public school the Board of Education may well be proud of the Fort Street School, and should spare no pains to tidy and artistic surroundings upon youth there can be no doubt-while the remarkable versatility of the principal enables him to teach in the many studies which form the curiculum of the school, the demands upon him must be great, and if the school continues to increase more teachers for special branches would seem necessary. The rhetorical and dramatic exercises last evening came off with great eclat and delighted Keliihanaiwi Davis, you have been accused of the crime of murder, and have been convicted, after a fair trial, by a jury of your countrymen. The circumstances which were proved at your trial, and your deliberate confession made on the 15th day of March last, leave no possible made on the 15th day of March last, leave no possible doubt that you have committed the deed. At the first examination before the Coroners Jury on the first day of March last, you denied all knowledged touching the matter, and on the 15th of the same month, after being duly cautioned by the Magistrate, you made a full, free and circumstantial confession. This confession, it is true, you retracted at the trial before this Court, and made again a statement identical with that made on the first of March. But all the circumstances detailed in your confession correspond so accurately with the testimony The examination was followed by the following fession correspond so accurately with the testimony given by others that no one can have any doubt that the story told by you on the 15th of March last :- accurately true, and that you are guilty as charged. By your confession it appears that for the smallest temptation you undertook to assist in the murder of a man who had been your paramour for many years—with whom it does not appear you had any cause of quarrel—from whom you and separate yourself at your own will, and with whom you still continued intimate and friendly enough to pass the night previous to his death in company with your As you have said, you left his hospitalities on Friday shand under his roof. as you have said, you ter his nonfinites on triady morning, and in a few hours afterward, began to colcoct a scheme for his destruction; you repaired to his house with your accomplice in the early part of the night, and there engaging his attention in serving you with various articles gave the opportunity to your companion to strike him with a view of stunning him, and then you held him puttlessly until your companion had strangled him to him with a view of stunning him, and then you need him pitilessly until your companion had strangled him to death. You say the temptation offered you for this atro-cious crime was the expectation of sharing a small sum of money which the decessed man possessed, and so you say yourself after the murder you demanded of your ac-complice ten dollars. Thus for this paltry sum you took the life of a man who had never done you any harm, whom you acknowledged to have been kindly disposed to you, even to the last, and the connection with whom you had voluntarily dissolved; and for all this the law of your country demands your life as a penalty.

had voluntarily dissolved; and for all this the law of your country demands your life as a penalty.

I entreat you now to remember that God is just and merciful, and will pardon the repentant sinner even to the last moment. Therefore, during the time that will be allowed to you previous to your suffering the penalty of the law, seek all means possible to reconcile yourself to his mercy, and listen to those good men and women who may endeavor to direct your thoughts in the right Corney, and has over 80 pupils. The tedium of Kelijhanajwi Dayis, listen to the sentence of the law. The sentence of the Court is: "That you Keliihanaiv Davis be taken hence to the Prison on the Island of Oah Davis be taken hence to the Prison on the Island of Ostol, and that you be kept there in close confinement until the last Friday in October next ensuing; and on the said last Friday in October, between the hours of six o'clock in the morning and twelve at noon, you be hung by the neck within the walls of the said prison until you are dead. And may God have mercy upon your soul."

The prisoner, John Brown, came up for sentence, and Chief Justice Harris addressed him as follows: John Brown, you have been accused of the murder o John Brown, you have been accused of the murder of your shipmate, John Frederick, and a jury, drawned from the foreign residents of this city, have returned a verdict of guilty against you. There cannot be a shadow of doubt that Frederick came to his death by a wound inflicted by you on the night of the 31st day of May last, and that you inflicted that wound without any provocation whatever. You have said that you were so drunk on the night in question that you did not know what took place. But the evidence showed that though you had been drinking that you were not senselessly drunk, or were not senselessly drunk, or yen in that condition, which indicated to those who were witnesses to the stabbing that you were drunk in my sense, except so far as being somewhat under the influence of liquor.

The evidence and the circumstances would tend to show that liquor had not taken away your senses in any way whatsoever, but only excited your evil passions. here is scarcely any doubt that liquor had disturbed our mind, so that you did the act under the influence of , but there can be but little doubt that you were entirely concious of what you were doing, concious of the as-sault and concious of its effects on yourself after it was done. Drunkenness is no excuse for crime, even if it were proved; and the jury were instructed to take all the circumstances of your case into consideration, and having doubtlessly done so, they have returned a verdict having doubtlessly done so, they have returned a verdict of guilty, with which I am bound to say, the whole Court concurs. The jury have recommended you to the mercy of His Majesty the King, and we shall not fail to transmit their recommendation, though what effect it may have I can possibly form no opinion.

I earnestly recommend you now to occupy your time in reflecting upon your past errors, and urge upon you the repentance for errors, and crimes.
